Elements of an APA citation

Reference

There are four elements of a reference: Author, Date, Title, and Source. Consider how each element can answer the following questions in properly creating a reference:

Author: Who is responsible for creating this work?	Date: When was this work published?	Title: What is this work called?
Post, P. B., Phipps, C. B., Camp, A. C., & Grybush	n, A. L. (2019). Effective	ness of child-centered play therapy among marginalized children. International Journal	of Play Therapy, 28(2),	88–97. https://doi.org/10.1037/pla0000096

Source: Where can I retrieve (or find) this work?

In-text

There are three basic elements in an in-text citation: Author, Date, and Location. There are two general manners in which citations are included intext, parenthetical or narrative.

- Parenthetical involves placing all required elements in parentheses immediately after a direct quote or paraphrase.
- Narrative is the incorporation of the author in your writing and using signal phrases to indicate to the reader what information is being presented next.
 - Examples of signal phrases: The author acknowledges..., Author (YEAR) compares..., As illustrated by Author (YEAR)...
 - If relevant, include the date in your narrative. When irrelevant place the publication year in parentheses following the introduction of the author.
- The location element (e.g., page number, paragraph, or section) is required when including a direct quote.

For more information, please refer to pages 1 to 6 of this guide and consult pages 253 to 278 in the APA Publication Manual or in the KC Library's Virtual APA Style (7th Edition) Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7).

Reference Formatting Requirements

The reference list must include the following formatting:

- Title the page References (see page 18 of this guide for a sample reference page)
- There are four elements to a reference entry, placed in the following order:
 - 1. Author. 2. Date. 3. Title. 4. Source. (see page 6 of this guide for an in-depth breakdown for using each element)
 - Place a period at the end of each element (this excludes DOI or URL)
 - o Use punctuation marks, most commonly commas or parentheses, between different parts of the same element
- References cited in-text must appear as an entry in the reference list. This excludes personal communications and secondary sources
- Place the list of reference entries on a new page at the end of your text
- All entries in the reference list are organized alphabetically, by author's last name or by title if there is no author
- If two or more entries are by the same author(s), list the entries in chronological order (oldest first)
- If two or more entries have the same authors and year, each source must be differentiated by placing an alphabetical letter after the year (e.g., 2019a, 2019b, 2019c)
- If no publication date is available, use the abbreviation (n.d.). See page 284 in the APA Publication Manual for guidance on other missing elements
- Double space all references
- Each entry must be formatted with a hanging indent (0.5 inch or 1.27 cm)
 - How to create a hanging indent in Microsoft Word: Highlight your reference entry, right click, and select Paragraph from list. A new window will open; select Hanging from the drop-down menu labelled Special

Formatting DOIs and URLs

- To standardize the retrieval of sources with a DOI, the entire hyperlink is required in APA 7 (i.e., https://doi.org/10.1037/pla0000096)
- If no DOI is available, treat the source as a print format
- Whether print or online, if a source has a DOI it must be included in a reference list entry
- If citing a webpage or a document retrieved from a website, provide a URL in the reference list entry
- Do not state "retrieved from" prior to the URL

For more information, consult pages 281 to 309 in the APA Publication Manual or in the KC Library's Virtual APA Style (7th Edition) Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7/references).

In-Text Citation Formatting Requirements

In-text Citations

A citation describes the work where you found and used information to support your writing's arguments or ideas. When citing a specific part of a work, identify the point in-text where the information was retrieved from. All in-text citation information must correspond to a specific reference entry found in the reference list at the end of a paper. There can be only one reference entry to correlate with an in-text citation.

- When using quotations, always indicate the location in-text where the quotation is found (e.g., Austen, 1813, p. 35)
- If a page number is not available for a direct quote, provide the paragraph, section, or chapter
- Page number and paragraph will be abbreviated (e.g., p. 218, pp. 218-220, or para. 6), whereas chapter is not (e.g., Chapter 10)
- When citing a work by two authors, list both authors' last names in the order they were presented (e.g. Egoff & Saltman)
- When creating in-text citations for works by three or more authors, only list the first author's last name followed by et al. (e.g., Connor et al., 2011)

Quotations and paraphrasing

- Paraphrasing is taking an author's idea(s) and incorporating it into your own words.
 - When citing a paraphrased idea, a page number is not required.

Example: Health Canada (2018) recently published studies that have found...

- A direct quotation is using the author's exact words in your writing.
 - When citing a direct quote, a page number or other location element is required in addition to author and publication date.
 - To identify the author and location of quotation used in your writing, provide the last name(s) of the author(s), the publication date, as well as page, paragraph, chapter, etc. in-text.

Example: Recent studies confirm that "..." (Health Canada, 2018, para. 2).

Whether paraphrasing or directly quoting information in-text there are two general manners in which an in-text citation can be presented: Narrative or Parenthetical.

Narrative citations

- Presenting information about the source of the idea or quote in sentence is the process of writing a narrative or in the sentence citation
 - Paraphrase General Format Author last name(s) (publication year) ...

• Paraphrase Example:

As a result, Dewey (1963) emphasizes that the quality and impact of a learning experience is correlated with a belief in democracy.

• Direct Quote General Format:

Author last name(s) (publication year) "..." (p. #)

• Direct Quote Example:

Dewey (1963) states that it is "the business of the educator to see in what direction an experience is heading" (p. 38).

Additional specific examples of a narrative and a parenthetical citation for each source type can be found on pages 9 to 17 of this guide or in the KC Library's Virtual APA Style (7th Edition) Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7/intextcitations).

Parenthetical citations

- Presenting information about the source immediately following the idea or quote is the process of presenting a parenthetical citation
 - Paraphrase General Format:
 - ... (Author last name, publication year)

• Paraphrase Example:

The interconnectedness of curriculum with all other elements makes it "the vehicle to organize knowledge, skills, and dispositions for students and teachers to unstandardized the teaching and learning experiences" (Tienken, 2020, p. 40).

• Direct Quote General Format:

"......" (Author last name, publication year, p. #)

• Direct Quote Example:

As a result, a "movement away from sharply defined subject areas would lead to a drop in 'quality' and 'standards'" (Hopkins, 2018, p. 143).

For more information, consult pages 269 to 278 in the APA Publication Manual or in the Virtual KC Library Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7/intextcitations).

Block Quotations

- A block quotation is required if a direct quotation is 40 words or more
- To format a block quotation, begin the quotation on a new line and indent the text
- Do not use quotation marks
- Double space the entire quotation
- Only place a period at the end of the quotation. Do not place a period after the parenthetical citation

For more information, consult pages 272 to 273 in the APA Publication Manual or in the Virtual KC Library Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7/intextcitations).

Secondary (Indirect) Source

A secondary source, also referred to as an indirect source, is where you are citing the ideas of a source that are published in another source's text, but you have not read or accessed the original source (e.g. you are wanting to cite information in an article that was cited by that article's author(s)).

- Before you cite a secondary source, please note: Citing a secondary source is not recommended and should be done sparingly, such as in the occasion that the original source is out of print or unavailable
- Why? If you are citing the quotation of someone else, you are not viewing the actual context of the quote within the original author's writing and ideas
- How to cite the source, instead: When possible, the original source should be found, read, and directly cited

In-text Citation

• To cite a secondary source, indicate both the author(s) and year of the original source as well as the author(s), year, and location (if a direct quote) citing the original source

Parenthetical in-text citation example:

- "..." (Yazici, 2019, as cited in Yoshifumi & Payne, 2019, p. 560).
- ... (Engeström, 2005, as cited in Gutiérrez et al., 2009).

Narrative in-text citation:

Yazici's (1999, as cited in Yoshifumi & Payne, 2019) study determined ... Engeström (2005, as cited in Gutiérrez et al., 2009) emphasizes the role of expansive learning as "..." (p. 5).

Reference Entry

- To cite a secondary source, only include in the reference list the source in which you found the information
- The format of the reference should reflect the source type in which you found the indirect citation

Reference Entry Example:

Gutiérrez, K. D., Hunter, J. D., & Arzubiaga, A. (2009). Re-mediating the university: Learning through sociocritical literacies. Pedagogies, 4(1), 1–23. https://doi.org/10.1080/15544800802557037

If the title of a work is not italicized in a reference entry, place double quotation marks around the title in the in-text citation (e.g., a journal article, reference entry, or chapter in a book,

For more information, consult pages 264 to 265, 285 to 289, and 304 to 306 in the APA Publication Manual or in the Virtual KC Library Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7/references)

Formatting Titles

When formatting titles, it is important to recognize whether the title is for a stand-alone work (e.g., books, webpages, or social media) or from a work that is contained by a larger work (e.g., chapter in an edited book or article in a journal). How titles are formatted will also depend on whether they are found in a reference entry or in the body of your work.

Title used in a reference entry

- For works that are part of a larger work (e.g., articles in a journal or magazine):
 - o Do not italicize the title or use quotation marks.
 - Place the title in sentence case (first word and any proper nouns are capitalized).

Example: Cost benefit analysis to select clean energy solutions in dairy farm milk collection posts in Azores

- For stand-alone works (e.g., books or films):
 - Italicize and place the title in sentence case.

Example: The new republic of childhood: A critical guide to Canadian children's literature in English.

- For periodicals (e.g., journals or magazines):
 - Place in title case (capitalize all major words) and italicize of the name of the periodical

Example: International Journal of Play Therapy

Titles used in the body of your work

• Place double quotation marks around the title and use title case (capitalize all major words) for titles of articles, book chapters, and any other works that are part of a larger work.

Example: The article "Cost Benefit Analysis to Select Clean Energy Solutions in Dairy Farm Milk Collection Posts in Azores" explores...

• Italicize and use title case for titles of periodicals, book titles, reports, videos, webpages, and other stand-alone works

Example: The book The New Republic of Childhood: A Critical Guide to Canadian Children's Literature in English analyzes...

For more information, consult pages 30 to 49 in the APA Publication Manual or in the Virtual KC Library Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7/format).

Bias Free Language

In your writing, it is important to use language free of bias. Biased writing is where the language implies prejudice and perpetuates irrelevant assumptions.

To reduce bias in your writing, consider the following:

- Use affirming and inclusive language (e.g., use the terms "individuals", "people", or "persons" rather than "man" to refer to all human beings)
- Avoid using adjectives as nouns to label people or groups (e.g., "the poor"; instead use "people living in poverty") or to equate people with their condition (e.g., "drug user"; instead use "people who use drugs")
- Focus on relevant characteristics and acknowledge relevant existing differences
- Consider bias-free language as it relates to age, disability, gender, racial and ethnic identity, socioeconomic status, and intersectionality
- Be specific when appropriate and relevant to the context of your writing

For more information, consult pages 131 to 148 in the APA Publication Manual.

Heading Levels

- Headings appear within the body of the document to create structure. The formatting and heading levels will depend on the information presented and the type of document
- Bold and title case all heading levels
- Title case is the capitalization of all major words (and words longer than 4 letters)
- Level 1 headings are used for main sections of your paper (e.g., title, conclusion, references, and other main topics of your thesis/topic)
- The following level headings are used to structure the sub sections. Level 2 is a subheading of level 1 and so forth

Format of Heading Levels

Figures and Tables

- Figures are all types of graphical displays excluding tables (e.g., photographs, graphs, drawings, charts, etc.).
- Number all tables and figures in the order in which they are presented in-text.
- Place the number flush left above the table or figure in bold font (e.g., Table 1).
- Place the title of table or figure one double-spaced line below the table or figure number. The title will be in italic title case.
- Provide a title which describes the contents of the table or figure (see Section 7.11 in the APA Manual).
- Use Arabic numerals for labelling (e.g., Table 5 or Figure 5).
- All figures and tables must be referred to in-text.
- Tables and figures cited in-text must have a complete entry in the Reference List.
- If required, place a note in italics below the table or figure (e.g., Note.) to provide a description of the contents that cannot be interpreted from the title. This also includes specific information, definitions of abbreviations, and copyright attribution.

For more information, consult pages 195-250 in the APA Publication Manual or in the Virtual KC Library Guide (https://keyano.libguides.com/APA7/format).

Lists (Seriation)

- Series may be presented in lettered, numbered, or bulleted lists.
- Numbered lists:
 - \circ Use when displaying complete sentences or paragraphs (e.g., steps in a process).
 - Separate sentences in a series by an Arabic numeral followed by a period.
 - Capitalize the first word of each sentence.
 - End each sentence with a period or appropriate punctuation.
- Lettered lists:
 - \circ Write list as a part of the narrative within a sentence or paragraph.
 - Present elements in a series with lowercase letter(s) in parentheses.
 - Use commas to separate three or more elements within a sentence.
 - o If a sentence already has internal commas, instead separate using semicolons.
- Bulleted lists:
 - Use bullet points for any series that should not be placed in any type of ordinal position (e.g., level of importance).
 - o Bullet points can be used when presenting a list within a sentence with three or more elements in a series.
 - Capitalize and punctuate the list as if it were a complete sentence (place a period at the end of the final item in the series).
 - o If a series consists of items that are complete sentences, capitalize and punctuate each sentence as appropriate.
 - o If a series consists of items that are phrases or sentence fragments, begin each item with a lowercase letter (do not capitalize).
 - Consider punctuation (commas, semicolon, and/or periods) for longer sentence fragments, as if the bullet list was not present.
 - Punctuation is not necessary for series consisting of short phrases.
