Chicago Citation Style

Library Quick Guide

Adapted from the 17th edition (2017) of The Chicago Manual of Style: The Essential Guide for Writers, Editors, and Publishers.

The Chicago Manual of Style provides two systems for documentation of sources:

- 1. The notes-bibliography system is often preferred by those in the humanities, such as in the arts, history, and literature. This style requires that all sources that have been consulted are cited within a work in the form of a footnote or endnote, and at the end of a work in the form of a bibliography.
- 2. The author-date system is often used by those in natural, physical, and social sciences. This style requires all sources that have been consulted are briefly cited in-text, using parentheses, noting the author's last name and date of publication. The brief citations are linked to a reference list, containing full bibliographic information, found at the end of the work.

This guide is based on the 17th edition of The Chicago Manual of Style and features an overview and common citation examples of the notes-bibliography system only. For further information and examples of both systems, refer to the print edition (17th edition) and the online version of The Chicago Manual of Style.

*Citation style preferences may differ per discipline and/or instructor. Check with the instructor to ensure that the correct citation style is used.

General Rules

- Citations (14.1-2, 14.19-23): It is recommended practice that all sources consulted, whether paraphrased, summarized or quoted, be cited in both the notes (footnotes or endnotes) and in the bibliography (see 14.232 for exceptions).
- Spacing: The body of a work is double-spaced. But place only one space between sentences, not two.
 - Footnotes/endnotes and the bibliography is single spaced. Leave a blank line between each entry.
 - Indent new paragraphs by one-half inch.
- Margins: Margins should be 1 inch on all sides.
- Page Numbers: Assign each page of a work a number using Arabic numerals. The page numbers should be centered or flush right, at the top of the page.
- Typeface and Size: Use a font that is easy to read (Times New Roman, Arial, Calibri, etc.) in a font size that is preferable as 12 pt. and no less than 10 pt.
- Titles (8.156, 14.86-99, 14.206): All major words in a title and subtitle should be capitalized. Italicize the title of books and journals in the body of the work.
 - Italics are also used for titles of newspapers, blogs, movies, video games, and paintings.
 - Quotation marks are typically used for titles of subsections of larger works, such as the titles of chapters, articles, or pages of a website.
 - Separate the main title from the subtitle using a colon. A space always follows the colon.

- Block Quotations (13.9-10, 13.22-24): Always begin a block quotation on a new line. There is not a specific word count guideline. Single space and indent long quotes or entire paragraphs.
- Abbreviations (10.1, 14.113, 14.20-21, 14.103-104): The terms editors, translators, compilers, number or description of an edition (other than the first) are abbreviated and placed following the name or title.
 - o One editor (ed.) or two or more editors (eds.)
 - o Translator (trans.), compiler (comp.), or two or more compilers (comps.)
 - Second edition (2nd ed.) or revised edition (rev. ed.)
- Sources consulted online or via a database (14.6, 14.9, 14.11, 14.160-61, 14.175): When available provide a DOI, instead of the URL for a source. If a source is accessed via a database or subscription and does not have a DOI, provide the name of the database.
- Line breaks in URLs or DOIs (14.18): If a DOI or URL has to be broken at the end of a line, follow the rules below.
 - Break after a colon (:) or a double slash (//)
 - Break before a single slash (/), a tilde (~), a period (.), a comma (,), a hyphen (-), an underline (_), a question mark (?), a number sign (#), or a percent symbol
 - Break before or after an equals sign (=), or an ampersand (&)

Notes

References in text can be listed by two different types of notes: footnotes and endnotes.

- 1. Footnotes are numbered citations listed at the bottom of each page within a work.
- 2. Endnotes are numbered citations listed at the end of a work. The citations are listed on a separate prior to the bibliography.

To effectively cite sources, footnotes or endnotes must include the following:

- To cite a source in text, place a superscript number (⁷) at the end of a sentence or clause, and after any punctuation.
- The in-text references must be numbered in sequential order.
- The numbered in-text reference (7) will correspond to a numbered citation (7.) in the footnote or endnote.
- The first note citing a source must be given a full citation. The subsequent citations that have already been listed in the notes may be shortened to a short note.
 - The 17th edition of Chicago Manual of Style now discourages the use of Ibid (14.34) in favour of shortened citations when citing the same source in subsequent citations.
 - To avoid repetition, the work's title just cited may be omitted.
- Write the author's name as presented on a title page.
- If more than four words, the title in a short note should be shortened to contain key words or words from the title.
- If a work has two or three authors, provide the last name of each. For more than three authors, provide the last name of the first author followed by et al.
- The first line of a note is indented by one-half inch from the left margin. The second and subsequent lines are flush left.

Basic structure of a note: 1. Author's Full Name, Title (Publication Location: Publisher Name, Date of Publication), page number(s).

Basic structure of a short note: 1. Author's Last Name, Title or Partial Title, Page(s) Cited. Last updated: February 2018

For additional information, please consult sections 14.24-14.36 in the Chicago Manual of Style.

Bibliography

The Bibliography is a list containing detailed entries of all sources used in a work and must include the following:

- Displayed on a new page, at the end of a work. The bibliography will precede an index.
- The first page of a bibliography is usually titled "Bibliography".
- Single-space each entry in the bibliography, but leave a single blank line before and after each entry.
- Indent the second and subsequent lines of an entry by 0.5" from the left margin. The first line is flush left.
- Invert the author's name (last name, first name).
 - If multiple authors (two to ten): the second and subsequent authors are listed in normal format (first name last name), with an ampersand (&) placed between each name.
- Entries must be arranged alphabetically by author's last name or by title (if no author).
- If there are two or more entries by the same author, list the entries alphabetically by title. Replace the author's name in the second and subsequent entries with a 3-em dash followed by a period (---.).
- Use n. d. when a publication date of a printed work is unavailable.
- The publisher's name must be written in full.
